

East Coast Encounters 1770

Sutherland Shire Historical Society has published a book that looks back on the first recorded contact between Aboriginal people of Australia's East Coast and Europeans. East Coast Encounters 1770, Reflections on a Cultural Clash presents a new assessment of these extraordinary events when James Cook and the Endeavour crew landed on our shores 250 years ago. This compilation of ten articles by different authors provides for the general community a range of perspectives on the clash of cultures and debunks the various myths that either hero-worship or vilify Cook.
